

Cama'i – Hello,

We are open! Summer visitors are enjoying the museum with its new exhibits and expanded store. There is something for everyone—from artifacts and artwork to a place to play for children. Bring your family and friends to explore Tuesdays through Fridays from 10 am to 4 pm, and Saturdays from Noon to 4 pm. Taikina! — You should come!

Exhibit Hall

Developed with the support of community advisors, our new exhibits share Alutiiq history and culture through the lens of cultural values. Explore galleries focused on land, people, spirit, and fire, and then learn about recent history in displays on the Russian and American eras. Visit in person or online.

Take the Artist Survey

ATTENTION ARTISTS & CULTURE BEARERS

We need your help designing an economic development project. Please tell us how we can support you by completing our artist survey. It takes just a few minutes.

Meet the Puppets

Pisurta—The Hunter

Eight puppets are the latest addition to our Who Are the Alutiiq traveling education box. Dressed in Alutiiq clothing by artist Susan Malutin, each puppet comes with a personal biography. Learn about roles in Alutiiq society while enjoying these charming characters. There is even a lesson plan for using the puppets in the classroom.

Take Photographs Not Artifacts

As you explore Kodiak this summer, please be respectful of archaeological sites. The materials they contain belong to the land owner and they are protected by law. Don't dig or collect.

What should you do if you discover an artifact? Take pictures and report your find, but leave it where you discovered it.

Meet Ashley Jensen

Karluk Church, by Ashley Jensen

Ashley is a member of Kodiak's Olsen Family. She enjoys painting and works with acrylics to capture scenes from the archipelago. Communities, churches, and landscapes are her inspiration. Each image is carefully planned and painted in detail on stone. See examples of Ashley's work on her artist page on the museum's website.

New to the Museum Store

Glass charcuterie board with paddle design.

We've been busy developing new products for the Alutiiq Museum Store—a men's cap, inspiration stones, a fan, dog leashes, a glass charcuterie board with Alutiiq paddle designs, and more! Stop by to browse our creations or visit our new Museum Store website online.

Membership Matters

It takes many people to keep the light of culture burning bright—culture bearers, learners, and supporters. Everyone has a role. Everyone can help. Help us celebrate the Alutiiq Museum's 30th anniversary and invest in future programs with a membership or a donation to the museum.
